FARMERS AND THE TELEPHONE.

The increased comforts of life in cities, as distinguished from life in the country, were the cause of the movement toward the cities which became noticeable a few years ago. An obliteration of certain differences between the city and the country will induce many city men, it is thought, to return to the farm. The telephone and the electric car are doing much to citify the country in the desirable sense. When communication is made easy in all weathers, a long step has been taken toward removing the disadvantages of country life. In rural sections of the East and over large areas of the Middle West the telephone now serves the farmer in his daily business. A contemporary tells how in a Massachusetts county farmers four years ago started a company with a capital of $12,000 that now has 150 miles of wire, 200 subscribers and rates as low as $6 a year for original subscribers. In Montgomery county, Indiana, the farmers raised a lump sum to buy a switchboard, then bought their own telephones and helped to erect the wires required in their respective neighborhoods. With an "initiation fee" of $3 and a monthly fee of 25 cents they keep the lines in repair, and the tolls from non-subscribers pay the salary of the switchboard operator. Forty towns are thus served with 6,000 telephones at small expense to the farmers interested. The farmers are thus put in close touch with the markets and transact much business without loss of time from traveling to and fro. The best thing about it is that the isolation of the farmer's life, so far as intercommunication is concerned, is removed and young people, being able to communicate in all sorts of weather, find country life agreeable. The doctor also is made accessible, sociability is promoted and existence ceases to be a bore.—Balto Sun.

PENNSYLVANIA GERMAN.

PROMINENT PART HE HAS PLAYED IN THE HISTORY OF THE NATION.

The following article is part of a paper read by title before the Pennsylvania German Society, which met in Easton during October last, as taken from the Bethlehem Times. This society has passed the tenth year of its existence and will do partial justice to those people who have done much good in the history of the State and the Union:—

There are few books extant (one, however, is by an Easton author) giving facts of interest concerning the Pennsylvania Germans, but many items of information may be gleaned in the perusal of the annual volumes published by the society, which is practically an historical society and has for its objects the collecting of such information which in time may alter the history of our State and resurrect deeds performed by the forefathers of our Pennsylvania German element.

These volumes in the earlier years of the society were urged upon its members, but so valuable are they at this date that they are at a premium, being not only sought by book lovers of this country, but in Europe, and fortunate indeed is that individual who owns a complete set to enrich his library.

Inasmuch as these volumes are inaccessible to the public, the following extracts are assembled from various addresses at the annual meetings, hoping to interest those persons who may desire some knowledge concerning their Pennsylvania German ancestry, confidently expecting that in the course of years justice will be done to these people by able historians.

In the annual address by W. H. Egle, Esq., at Lebanon, in 1892, after explaining the reasons, says: "It is no easy task to trace out their history."

"There are a multitude of Pennsylvania German men and women who deserve to be especially remembered for the work they did; the part they took as pioneers; the duties they performed in the church, the community, the State and the Nation—in peace and in war."

In certain correspondence of John G. Whittier in 1801, with a member of this society, he speaks of the present Pennsylvania Germans as "The descendants of the brave, true men of the Fatherland, who made their forest homes on the Delaware and the Susquehanna."

Also from a certain poem by the same author:—

"That sold hearted yeomanry, honest and true,
Who haters of fraud give to labor its due,
Whose fathers of old sang in concert with thine,
On the banks of the Swatara, the songs of the Rhine,
The German born pilgrims, who first dared to brave
The scorn of the proud in the cause of the slave."

The historian Bancroft has said of the Germans in America: "Neither they nor their descendants have laid claim to all that is their due."

From an address by B. F. Nead, Esq., at Lebanon, in 1892, the following is abstracted:—

"The German element had little part in public affairs, but later it stands forth prominently in the names of the German born Governors of Pennsylvania—Simon Snyder, Joseph Hiester, John A. Schultze, George Wolfe, Joseph Ritner, Francis R. Shunk, William Bigler, John F. Hartranft and James A. Beaver."

It is charged that the Pennsylvania German was opposed to free schools, but competent authority states "They were not opposed to education."

They had established almost with every church a school, just as now seen with the Quakers and Catholics, and their unwillingness to break up this system and pay taxes for another method constituted their apparent objection for the free school system, which gives the greatest good to the greatest number.

In Rev. Dr. Heckman's address, entitled "Pennsylvania Germans at the Battle of Long Island," he quotes from Barry's History of Massachusetts the fact that the first victim of the Revolution was a German by the name of Schneider.

From the same paper: "The Germans were an intelligent and pious people, the first to publish and republish the Bible in America."

"None of the English colonies were so free from Toryism as the German colonies in the various States."

"Washington himself freely testifies to their patriotism and invaluable services."

"Their money flowed into the Continental treasury, the rich products of their farms fed the famishing armies of the patriots and their blood was abundantly shed on the battlefields of the Revolution."

One writer says: "If they could not talk English they could shoot English."

Concerning the Revolutionary War this same writer says that "Preparations for armed resistance to the growing oppression of the home government began in Pennsylvania as early as 1774."

In the Easton Court House (once in Center Square) a public meeting was held Dec. 21, 1774, to concert measures for the defense of the colonies.

This patriotic movement began among the Pennsylvania Germans six months before corresponding action was taken by the citizens of Philadelphia and at Newark, N. J. This same writer says: "The battlefield of Long Island has historic prominence as the first battlefield after the Declaration of Independence. The glory of the Pennsylvania Germans is that they were the chief instrumentality in preventing the route and capture of the American forces engaged. The battlefield of Long Island was the Thermopylae of the Revolultion, and the Pennsylvania Germans were the Spartans."

Out of less than one hundred of the Easton company seventy-one were either killed or wounded.

At the banquet held at the meeting in Lebanon in 1892 one of the toasts was "The Pennsylvania German as a Statesman," responded to by Hon. H. A. Muhlenberg, and from his remarks we take the following:—

"The Constitution of the United States, perhaps the greatest Constitution which was ever devised for the good of man, was ratified by Pennsylvania as the second of the thirteen colonies.

The vote stood 46 to 23 and of these 46 votes most of them were drawn from Pennsylvania Germans.

"I do not have very much family pride, but I do take pride in the fact that over the convention which ratified that Constitution of these United States one who has my family name presided."—(Muhlenberg.)

From another toast at the same meeting, "The Pennsylvania German in War," the following is quoted: "All through it (the Revolution) and everywhere in connection with the armies of the United States in those days, the Pennsylvania German soldier performed his full duty.

"In the war of 1812 and all subsequent Indian wars was the Pennsylvania German represented, and two regiments, largely of this element, rendered glorious service in Mexico."

Col. Thomas C. Zimmerman, of Reading, in an address at Mt. Gretna on Pennsylvania German Day, on "Our Ancestral Virtues," says "That the Pennsylvania Germans have upheld in themselves the traditions of the personal valor and renown of their ancestors, and have attained both name and fame in war and in statesmanship, in law and in literature."

There were substantial citizens among the Pennsylvania Germans even in Washington's time, as nine gave conjointly their personal bond for $100,000 to provision the army. At one public meeting held to raise funds one Christopher Ludwig arose and announced his gift, "Mr. President, I am only a poor gingerbread baker, but write me down for two hundred pounds ($1,000.)"

The Germans have the honor of the first printing press, and the printing of the first Bible in Pennsylvania, by Christopher Sauer.

"Ohne Hast, Ohne Rast," is their early motto, and is an index of the sample Pennsylvania German as at his work he neither hastes nor rests.

While the "Moravians" are not "Palatinates," or descendants of those who left the Palatinate in Germany to escape religious persecution, a synopsis of their glorious work in Pennsylvania was given in an address by Rev. Paul DeSchweinitz at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania German Society held at York, Pa., in 1893, from which some facts are extracted.

Contrary to the generally received opinion that the Moravians began their work in Nazareth and Bethlehem, it is stated that the first colony was instituted in Georgia in 1735, but, being disciples of peace, it proved a failure because the "Brethren" refused to bear arms against the Spaniards.

Then the "Brethren" turned their attention to Pennsylvania and changed their location to Nazareth in 1740 and meeting with certain difficulties, abandoned their work for a time and began the settlement of Bethlehem, securing their first colony from Moravia in 1742, having been brought by the ship Catherine, so that if the New England people can take pride in the "Pilgrim Fathers" of the Mayflower, our Moravian cousins can take pride in their descent from the "Brethren" who came to this country in the Catherine. Although the true Moravian shows kinship to the Pennsylvania German by eliminating the element of pride in his composition and exhibits the reverse as an almost racial feature.

The Brethren or Moravian missionaries performed many heroic deeds among the Indians and were enabled thereby to accomplish by peaceful methods such results whereby many a life was saved, mainly so by influencing many Indians to remain neutral instead of joining the British. The Indian and Moravian lie buried side by side in Bethlehem and Nazareth.

As early as 1746 there were fifteen schools maintained by the Brethren, of which the Bethlehem Seminary, Linden Hall, Lititz and Nazareth Hall still remain, all these schools in the past century and a half doing noble service in training growing minds for their life work, most of which were the children of German parentage, thus sowing seed which has sprouted forth with the fruit which is shown among the Moravian descendants and their neighbors, the Pennsylvania Germans.

In Dr. Buehrle's address at the Pennsylvania Chautauqua, at Mt. Gretna, in July, 1894, he mentions the fact that there was a nominal co-educational school organized in Germantown in 1702, and in Nazareth Hall in 1807, a normal department was organized, in all probability the first in this country.

In those early days the pastors in many instances were the teachers, showing the Pennsylvania Germans' idea that religion and education should be closely allied.

The so-called opposition of the earlier Pennsylvania Germans was to the methods proposed, and they were not alone in this matter, for even to-day the Friends' schools show the same state of things, yet nothing is said to their discredit.

Col. Thomas C. Zimmerman, in an address on "Pennsylvania German Day" at Mt. Gretna, says of the Pennsylvania Germans: "A race whose hereditary characteristics and conservative political tendencies are closely interwoven with the life of this Commonwealth for over 200 years.

"It is to this conservative and patriotic element in America that much of our stability as a people and our prosperity as a Commonwealth is due."

Concerning the language of the Pennsylvania Germans this same speaker defends the charges made against it by the following statements: It is a legitimate dialect transplanted from the old Palatinate in South Germany. With the exception of a comparatively few English words that have crept into the language of the Pennsylvania German it is exactly the same spoken at the present day by the Palatinate peasantry in the Rhine provinces in South Germany, and the same that is spoken even now within the very shadow of the University of Heidelberg, one of the most noted in Germany.

"The Pennsylvania German is pre-eminently a liberty loving citizen." "An eminently practical man."

"He persistently works for what he gets, and as a rule takes good care of what he earns." "He is fully persuaded that it is first duty to pay his debts."

"He is gradually coming to the front in the army, the navy, in Congress, in our legislative halls, in judiciary departments, as also in literature, theology and philosophy."

While there is much which might be added, this article, like a long sermon, might lose its effect by undue length and as a conclusion add the following from an address by Rev. Dr. F. J. F. Shantz concerning the Pennsylvania German Society:—

"The mission of the Pennsylvania German Society is not to encourage and perpetuate the use of the Pennsylvania German dialect, as is evident from the fact that the English language is used at all its meetings, with occasional exception, but the mission of the society is to preserve the history of a noble ancestry—to establish and secure the just claim that our ancestors had an important part in the making of Pennsylvania and of our great Republic.

"We rejoice that the interest in the purposes of the Pennsylvania German Society is steadily increasing. Applications for membership are presented at each meeting of the Executive Committee. Men who are the descendants of such as came from the Fatherland show an interest in the work of this society and look upon connection with the society as an honor and great advantage."

CHATAUQUA ASSEMBLY.

Program Shows the Engagement of Many Distinguished People.

The annual sessions of the Pennsylvania Chatauqua will open at Mt. Gretna on Tuesday, July 2, and continue until August 8th. This attractive place is becoming more popular every year because of its comparative inexpensiveness the high class entertainments and instruction, combining just enough mental work for rest and recreation. The State Board of Health, on its visit of inspection last season, was loud in its praise of the complete system of underground sewerage and the sanitary conditions of the grounds. Aside from its healthfulness as a mountain resort, the program for the coming season makes it a specially desirable place to spend the vacation. Among the distinguished instructors are such persons as Prof. Francis H. Green and Dr. Lincoln Hulley, Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, state superintendent of public instruction, will deliver several lectures, while Edward P. Elliott and Charles F. Underhill, both noted impersonators, will each make several appearances. F. R. Roberson, the noted traveller and lecturer, will give an illustrated lecture on "China of To-day" and one on "Norway." Leon Vincent, whose lectures on literature have won for him a reputation everywhere will lecture daily for a week. Rev. Dr. J. H. Stahr, president of F. and M. college and of the State Teachers' association, will deliver an educational lecture, while Dr. George C. Groff, late superintendent of instruction in Porto Rico, will give several lectures, some of them illustrated. The Imperial hand bell ringers, the American trio, the Beetooven quartette, the Carolina jubilee singers and soloists and specialists will appear at various times, while such well known teachers as Prof. McGinnes, Prof. Deatrick, Mrs. H. J Jenkins, Miss Agnes Crawford, Dr. Eugene May and the Rev. Dr. Spooner will lecture on special subjects.

BESSIE—(who has invited a friend to the house, and for whose entertainment she would like access to the jam): Mama, haven't you enough confidence in me to let me have the key of the jam closet?

Mama—I don't know, Bessie—

Bessie—But, Mama, only yesterday you said you had entire confidence in cook because she was with you a year, and I've been with you six years!—Flygende Blaetter.

"Do you know what the Golden Rule is?" asked the man who remonstrates.

"Not exactly," answered the cold-blooded person, "but since they dragged it into Ohio politics I have a suspicion it is not what it used to be."

TILLETS—"Tryder looked very sad when he heard that telephoning across the ocean is possible."

Crustham—"I suppose he did, poor fellow. It will be an unhappy day for him when he cannot get beyond the reach of his wife's voice."—Harper's Bazar.

"YES," said Mr. Forchen-Hunter; "Miss Ritchen-Hoamley has promised to be mine." "Ah!" exclaimed his confidant, "considering that you don't love her, weren't you embarrassed when she accepted you?" "Somewhat; but I would have been more seriously embarrassed if she had not."—Philadelphia Record.

DISCURSIVE PREACHER—And now, brethren, having ended with the Prophets Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Daniel, where shall Hosea come in?

Old Parishioner (rising)—'E can 'ave my place, Parson; I'm goin' out.—The Sketch.

"AREN'T you afraid of that man who keeps making incendiary speeches?" inquired the close friend.

"Not a bit," answered Senator Sorghum. "The only kind of incendiary who stands any show of making an impression in my bailiwick is a man who has money to burn."—Washington Star.

"YOU have no nerve at all," said the disgusted dentist to the patient who was making a frightful fuss.

"Now listen to that," returned the patient warmly. "Blaming me for lack of nerve when you told me not five minutes ago that you'd extracted most of it and intended to kill what remained."—Chicago Post.

Life.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessing, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

GETTYSBURG.

BY BUSHROD WASHINGTON JAMES, PHILADELPHIA.

[From Echoes of Battle now in press.]

Brave men lay low at Gettysburg,
The grass alone their pillow;
The sunlit sky their canopy,
Their shade the oak and willow.
No comfort but the trampled sod!
No voice to charm their anguish:
They suffered on, they drooped and groaned;
We daily saw them languish!

Unaided? There were thousands there!
In scores, we toiled to aid them!
A handful we, against the hosts
Who thus had marred and laid them,
Blood-wet before the altar stairs
Of Freedom,—and Secession!
All one in pain and gaping wounds,
All one in war's possession!

Though time had hushed the frightful roar
Of cannon shot and rifle,
These cries, these prayers, these dying moans
And screams it could not stifle!
The voice of God alone could still
That surging sea of trouble!
But we, could only haste to help
And each exertion double!

Oh war! Thy meat is sacrifice!
Thy drink, the blood, warm streaming,
From maimed and tortured human frames,
From men of conquest dreaming!
They rose to follow at thy call
Each for the victory vying—
They lie all broken 'neath thy car
In anguish bleeding, dying!

Thy power is blacker than the night!
Thy voice is fiendish thunder!
Thy lips are reeking with the stains
Of blood, thy proudest plunder!
The glare within thine angry eyes
Bids angels flee before them.
But in the track the lines of pain
With swift impulse restore them!

They bend above thy victims then—
Love, Mercy, Hope and Science—
And Grief looks on, and breathless Fear
Stands awed by their alliance!
Their strength is not so great as thine
Thou, Death's ansated minion!
The Power of Darkness holds thee slave
Of all his dark dominion!

Men fall—but not to worship thee—
Thou soul of desolation!
They give themselves a sacrifice
For love of home and nation!
A Dove can sweep the reddened plumes
From off thy scowling fore head,
An Olive Branch can break the sword
Thy reeking hands have borrowed!

Peace reigning, thou art chained in thrall!
Oh, may no spirit ever
Arise to ope thy dungeon gate
Nor e'er thy shackles sever!
Thy voice, now hushed, may never stir
The hearts of those now sleeping,
Who gave their lives to save the flag
Entrusted to their keeping.

Larry, the Grocer's Boy.

Larry McCormick, the little grocer's boy, was fifteen minutes late that morning, and his boss, a big pudgy Dutchman turned on him sharply as he limped into the shop

"Say, kid," he remarked with ponderous satire, "you'regitten too fashionable mit your hours. De next time vat you comes in late like this you gits the G. B."

Larry scowled sullenly at the floor. "Dat's all right, boss. But you needn't be so hard on a feller. I hadn't de nickel for a car ride dis mornin' an' I had to walk, an' me game leg hurted so I couldn't hustle."

"Den you oughter be more saving mit dot dollars I gif you." retorted the other all this time very busy tying up pound packages of coffee for early morning orders.

"Aw gowan!" cried Larry, gazing up at the 200 pounds of blonde humanity before him with blazing eyes. "I gits two plunks and haf a week, don't I?"—an' me mudder's scrubbin' days are purty near over. How d'yer spose a feller kin blow in cash on travelin' spences wid 'n income like dat?"

Just then a rosy-cheeked housemaid came bustling for some butter and eggs, so what the boss might have replied to such impudence on the part of his underling will never be known.

Larry limped to the rear of the store and crouched down by the stove to warm himself, for the day was cold. His home was on the outskirts of the great city, and it was good three miles' walk to the grocers' shop.

Poor Larry was badly handicapped in his battle with life. One day while playing in the streets he had been run over by a runaway truck. A leg was broken. He was taken to the hospital, of course, and the broken bone was set, but no one took any particular interest in him, and he was out and hobbling around before he should have been. There was no one to tell him that he was crippling himself for life. Lying all day in a dirty, squalid room with nothing to read—he didn't know how to read anyway—and no one to talk to, was it any wonder he longed for the street again? His mother came home at noon each day from the public building where she scrubbed the floors, and made some weak tea and cut some slices of bread; and sometimes there was a couple of boiled potatoes.

When Larry got his first job with a grocer their dining table became a little more inviting in appearance. Whenever the boy had to deliver a peck of potatoes for example, it was so easy to "swipe" three or four and stow them away in its pockets; in the same way a few crackers and an additional dish of vegetable found its way to the McCormick table. But you mustn't blame Larry for this pilfering. He didn't know he was doing wrong. How should he?

He was only ten years old, but already his philosophy of life was summed up in the conviction that everybody was against him and the more he could wheedle or "swipe" from other people the cleverer he was. There was one thing Larry had learned to do while his broken leg kept him on his back. With a stub of a pencil he had learned how to make rough caricature sketches of people he saw. How really clever he was at this no one realized, least of all himself.

And now as he lounged by the stove, when he should have been arranging the rows of baskets to be filled with the early order he was sketching his Dutch boss on a piece of yellow wrapping paper with an order pencil. In the bitterness of his spirit he was cruelly accentuating the man's double chin, his little pig eyes and the queer lines of his pudgy figure. Just then a man in a slouch hat and rather negligent attire stepped briskly into the shop.

"Eh! Dutchy!" he called out cheerily. "Send two pounds of butter and a couple of heads of lettuce and, let me see—oh, a pineapple cheese, with some water biscuits. We boys are going to have a little blowout in the rooms to-night. And, by the way, I'll settle our little account the first of the week. Just got a big order to do some pictures in a hurry. It'll put me on easy street all right!"

"Very well, Mr. Williams," said the boss, doubtfully, and then as the artist had left the shop he called out to Larry: "Say, you lazy young loafer, git Mr. Villiams' order right up and take it around at 12 o'clock. But don't you leaf widout cash. I told him de last time I couldn't let his account run no longer. An' remember if you leafs de stuffs widout pay you gits de sacks!"

"All right, boss!" said Larry, and as the Dutchman came his way he hastily wrapped the cheese with the sheet of paper on which he had made his sketch, lest the man should see it.

"It ain't zactly a flattering likeness!" chuckled the lad to himself.

Williams, who drew pictures for various magazines, kept house in a tiny flat with two other artists. They had no servant and got up their own meals; and they made the work seem like play, so jovial and good natured were they about it all. Williams could make a fine cup of coffee, and Peter was not to be beaten as a concoctor of omelette. Then Walther, the third of the happy family, could prepare a salad dressing to suit the king's taste, so after all, they asked one another what was the use of hiring a cook? Williams was busy at work sketching out a picture on a sheet of bristol board and humming cheerily to himself the while. He had work in plenty for a month to come, which was a pleasant prospect in itself. Then that evening a great artist was coming to sup with them, wherefore the order for crackers and pine apple cheese. Williams had known the great artist when they had been fellow students in Paris three or four years before

The 12 o'clock whistle blew and Williams laid down his pencil. His two friends were employed on a newspaper during the day, and so Williams was accustomed to get his own lunch at home; or when his purse would allow he would dine at a cheap restaurant. There was a rumble and a bump in the dumb waiter shaft.

"Ah!" thought Williams, "the cheese has arrived."

"All right!" yelled down the shaft, as he emptied the grocers' basket of the contents.

"De boss says fer youse to pay cash or I wasn't to leave de stuff!" came from Larry down below.

This was not a polite way of putting it, but Larry had never been taught manners.

"You and your boss can go to the dickens!" retorted Williams hotly, for he felt insulted and he slammed the dumb waiter down, too.

With the energy of despair, Larry yelled up the dumb waiter shaft calling the artist all the strange and impolite names he could think of till the burly old janitor seized the boy by his coat collar and flung him into the street. He and his basket lay there in a heap, while hot tears rained down the grimy face. "I wish I was dead!" he sobbed. Then he rose to his feet with a defiant gleam in his eyes. "I wish I was big enough to lick 'Dutchy'—or, or somebody!" he added.

It was a sorry little figure that stood before the fat grocer ten minutes later. "So you leaved de tings und got no pay fer 'em?" growled that worthy. "Now, I tell you vot you do. To-night about 7 you go to the front door und ring de bell for the top flat, und ven it opens mit a click you march upstairs as bold as brass and walk in and say to Mr. Williams, dat I must have my money. He'll be havin' company, und he won't want no fuss, see? Et you don't get the money, you surely get fired, den!" and the grocer brought his fist down on the counter with such force as to upset a bottle of pickles.

Williams and his friend, the great artist, were smoking two very black cigars when the bell rang, and a moment later Larry came crippling into the room, a pathetic little figure, shrinking from the cuffs he expected, and yet afraid not to do as he was bid.

"Say, mister!" he said in a high, shrill voice, bracing himself against the wall, 'you ain't the kind of a bloke to chuck a feller outer his job—are yer?" he added brokenly, with the tears swelling up in his eyes again.

But Mr. Williams didn't seem to be hearing what the lad was saying. Then Larry noticed that the two artists were gazing intently at a piece of paper which Williams held in his hand.

"Say, boy!" he asked sharply, "who did this," and he held out Larry's rough sketch of his boss.

The boy reddened and shifted uneasily on his feet. "Yer won't tell on me if I tell?" he implored.

"No,—no!" was the reply.

"Well, I done it, then," said Larry "and, say," he added, a sudden twinkle in his eye, "wouldn't de boss wipe de floor wid me if he seen it!"

"Boy," said the other man, the great artist, "would you like to be taught to draw so that when you grow up you could make pictures for the newspapers and magazines?"

"Me?" said Larry. "Me be an artist and live in a fine flat like this?"

"Yes," said the other, gravely.

"Ah, what are yer givin' me that song and dance for?" broke in Larry hotly.

"I mean it!" said the artist, "and if you want to come and live with me and keep my studio in order and run errands for me, I'll promise to make an artist of you—and a greater one than you and I can ever be," he added in a low voice to Williams.

"If you mean business I'm your man!" said Larry, and he wiped away some tears and wondered why they came.

And that is the story of how "Dutchy" lost a grocer's boy and the world gained a great artist.

IRISH FUN.

Whimsical Humor That Hails From the Emerald Isle.

The quaint repartee and whimsical humor of an Irish witness give a fillip of excitement to the dullest Court room, says the Green Bag. Quite recently a woman asked for a warrant against a man for using abusive language in the street.

"What did he say?" asked the magistrate.

"He went fornist the whole world at the corner of Capel street, and called me, yes he did, yer wuship, an ould excommunicated gasometer."

"He called me out of me name," said a witness in a case of assault.

The Judge, trying to preserve the relevancy of the witness's testimony, said:

"That's civil action, my good woman."

The witness's eyes flashed fire as she looked up at the Judge and retorted:

"Musha, then if ye call that a civil action, tis a bad bla'gard ye must be yerself,"

A witness was once asked the amount of his gross income.

"Me gross income, is it?" he answered. "Sure, an' ye know I've no gross income. I'm a fisherman, an' me income is all net."

"No man," said a wealthy but rather weak-headed barrister, "should be admitted to the bar who has not an independent landed property."

"May I ask, sir," said a witty and eminent Irish lawyer, "how many acres make a wiseacre?"

The element of the unexpected which characterizes Irish fun crops out in other places beside the Court room. It may be an old story, but it is as perennial as the subject, of the priest who preached a sermon on "Grace." "An', me brethren," he said, in conclusion, "if ye have wan spark of heavenly grace wather it, wather it continually."

Another priest, who had delivered what seemed to him an excellent and striking sermon, was anxious to ascertain its effect on his flock. "Was the sermon to-day to y'r likin,' Pat?" he inquired of one of them.

"Troth, y'r riverence, it was a grand sermon entirely," said Pat, with such genuine admiration that his reference felt moved to investigate further.

"Was there any one part of it more than another that seemed to take hold of ye?" he inquired.

"Well, now, as ye are for axin' me, begorra, I'll tell ye. What tuk hoult av me most was y'r riverence's parseverence—the way ye wint over the same thing agin and agin and agin."

GENERAL NEWS.

Prominent attorneys and judges from all over the State joined with 300 members of the Law Academy of Philadelphia in honoring Supreme Court Justice J. Hay Brown recently in Philadelphia. President John McClintock, Jr., of the Law Academy, presided at the affair and introduced Justice Brown as one of the most successful in his profession in the Keystone State Justice Brown's address, he said, would be the one hundred and eighteenth that had been delivered before the Academy since its organization in 1783.

The one hundred and thirteenth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church came to an end in Philadelphia, after another difficulty over revision which resulted in the election of Moderator Minton to be chairman of the new Special Committee on Revision. As Dr. Minton is decidedly adverse to a revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith, his selection was opposed by the champions of revision, and especially by the friends of Dr. Charles A. Dickey, who was chairman of the old Committee on Revision.

Chairman Frank Reeder, of the Republican State Committee, has issued the formal call for the State convention of his party, to be held in the Harrisburg Opera House on Wednesday, August 21. The nominations to be made are for a Justice of the Supreme Court and a State Treasurer.

THE DOROTHY MADDOX MAGAZETTE.

A New Publication Written for Women but Men Will Read It.

The first number of The Dorothy Maddox Magazette, filled from cover to cover with the brightest and most original articles of human interest, has been received. While the publication is a new one, the writer is very well know by all newspaper readers, among whom she has had a large following for some years.

The Magazette, which is in reality a magazine in miniature, is most attractively dressed in scarlet covers, to which Dorothy Maddox pertinently refers as "Red Outside and Read All Through." Her opening article "Within the Seventh Commandment?" dealing with a very common social evil, everyone will read to the end not only with keen interest but real profit as well. Included among the other bright sketches and verses are "The Confessions of Eve," a companion manuscript to Mark Twain's "Extracts Adam's Diary," in which Dorothy Maddox throws light upon the Garden of Eden's domestic affairs from a woman's point of view; "When Morals Balance," "The Girl with the Marble Heart," and "Their Second Summer." "If Man Took Up the White Woman's Burden?" is the subject of a cartoon and well written article on the trials of housewives with their servants. "A Word to the Motherkin" is a confidential little chat that all parents will enjoy. A newsy little skit on fashions and seasonable recipes for the kitchen will appeal to the feminine readers.

All in all The Dorothy Maddox Magazette which appear twice a month at five cents a copy, is delightful budget of facts and fancies written by a woman for women, but men will read it.

STREET IMPROVEMENT.

The appointment by the Town Council a month or two ago of a committee to inquire into the feasibility of making some substantial improvement to the streets of Gettysburg and to examine into the various methods of building the most improved highways will be remembered.

This committee was called upon for a report at the meeting of Council last Monday night, and the question elicted considerable discussion, the opinion of a number of the members being that not only a general repairing, but some new system should be adopted.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Wisotzkey, reported that partial inquiry into the matter had been made, but that on account of the probability of the building of a trolley railway on the streets of the town it was deemed advisable to postpone the consideration of permanent street improvement. It seemed te be the impression that the trolley company, to which rights were recently granted, will build a road in parts of the town at least. It has been stated that negotiations are pending for the purchase of the line already here by this new company.

The question of the streets of Gettysburg is becoming one of importance, and improvement is becoming a necessity for the convenience and comfort of the travelling public.. The present Council should take the opportunity to begin the good work. They would have the encouragement of a large number of our people, and a start in some permanent, substantial way will meet with general approval. Gettysburg should not be ashamed of her streets.

IT WOULD BE TO GARVIN.

In his address of welcome to the Grand Army of the Republic last Tuesday evening Gen. Chas. H. T. Collis commented favorably on the proposed erection of a Pennsylvania State monument in the Public Square of Gettysburg or on the Battlefield, and referred to Representative Garvin as the person who began the agitation in that direction.

We take it that General Collis speaks from the point of view of a soldier and as a citizen who desires to have the great State of Pennsylvania worthily represented by a suitable memorial on the Field of Gettysburg and that he is not acquainted with the circumstances surrounding the Garvin movement. He is perhaps not aware that Garvin was elected a member of the Legislature by the people of this county as a Democrat and on anti Quay promises, that Garvin broke faith with his constituents and became a machine Republican in the face of his promises, and that one of the reasons for his infidelity was a statement made that if he would vote for Marshall, Quay's candidate for speaker of the House, he could get his monument bill through. Garvin's vote elected Marshall, and Pennsylvania is disgraced by a Machine management in the Legislature not equalled in many years.

It is not becoming that Pennsylvania's memorial be erected under circumstances such as these.

FLAG DAY.

The 14th of June has come to be considered by the patriotic citizens of this country as "Flag Day," because on that day, in 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

April 4, 1818, Congress enacted further: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission."

The American Flag association calls upon all public schools, patriotic societies and citizens generally to observe the day in an appropriate manner.

PENNSYLVANIA'S SHAME.

The Focht-Emery Passenger Railway Rippers, intended by the Quay Machine to obstruct improvement and to lay heavier toll upon passenger traffic in the interest of a few railway magnates and to help the Machine pay the expense of its campaign for Speaker of the House and United States Senator, passed finally last Thursday and was signed by the Governor on Saturday.

Of this measure, one of the most obnoxious and scandalous of the session, the Philadelphia Times says:

The people of Pennsylvania have been shamed by the spectacle presented at Harrisburg this week. The two houses of the Legislature, in flagrant disregard of all lawful restraint, have joined in eager haste to vote away to an unnamed group of political speculators the rights and franchises that belong only to the public. To consummate this scheme all the influence of the State government, of the party organization and of the official representatives of Pennsylvania has been employed with insolent assurance.

The two United States Senators from this State—the successors of men like Maclay and Morris and Gallatin, of Dallas, Wilkins and Buchanan, of Bigler, Wilmot and Buckalew—have been the leaders of the railway lobby and have lent their personal endeavors to accomplish the betrayal of the Commonwealth, to grasp for themselves and their associates powers that ought never to be alienated from the people.

It would be a sufficient violation of propriety and decency for men holding the highest positions of honor and trust, as the representatives of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States, to employ their official influence for their own aggrandizement, had the privileges they sought been such as a private citizen might honorably seek. To employ this influence for covert schemes of private gain, in contempt of constitutional principle and in violation of public right, for schemes that they dare not subject to public scrutiny, is an infamy made the deeper by the exalted office that they hold.

The essential vice of these twin acts is not that they may enable a corporation to build elevated railways, but that they provide for the convenance of an exclusive right to a group of political speculators to hold against all comers, with no security that they will ever use it for the public advantage, but with unlimited power to exclude all others except on their own terms.

Governor Stone has signed the joint resolutions of the General Assembly submitting to the vote of the people at the next election two proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State which will permit an important reform in the election laws. These amendments were first proposed by the preceding Legislature. The Legislature which was elected after their publication has again passed the amendments, as provided in the Constitution, and they will accordingly be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection.

The slight improvement in Mrs. McKinley's health which manifested itself the latter part of the week continues, and hope begins to be felt that she may, after all, recover from the present attack.

LUTHERAN GENERAL SYNOD.

Church Statistics—The Procedings of the General Synod, in Part.

We reported last week the result of the election of officers of the General Synod of the Lutheran church which commenced in DesMoins, Iowa, May 30.

Following is an abstract of the report of the statistical secretary:

In 1900 there were reported 1,561 churches, an increase of 16 over the last report; preaching stations, 186, a decrease of 2; 1,613 prayer meetings, a loss of 173. In the same year 237 students for the ministry were receiving instruction, 44 less than in 1898.

The church continues to increase in the number of its catechumens, 38,230 receving instructions during the last biennium, a net gain of 422 over the preceding biennium. There has been a net decrease in losses, as well as in accessions, the net decrease being 862.

The estimated value in the church property of the general synod is $12,365,-556, a gain in valuation of $285,612. On this property the indebtedness is $1,221,-146, a decrease of $43,362. The local expenses of the congregations were $2,694,-456, or $18,934 less than in the preceding biennium.

The grand total of contributions was $3,333,739, an increase of $110,832. The total net reciepts have been $113,044.71, which is an excess of $21,941.50 over the past biennium, or more than 24 per cent. increase.

Thirty years ago receipts for this object were $2,927.47. Twenty years ago they were $24,344.38; 10 years ago, $70,139.49. Nine of the synods exceeded their apportionment and nine have increased their contributions.

The Lutheran population of the United States at present is 7,386,746.

The new Board of Home Missions consists of Rev. Dr. M. W. Hamma, Rev. L. M. Zimmerman, of Baltimore; Rev. Dr. Enders, of York, and Rev. G. H. Reen and Messrs. M. P. Hocker, A. F. Fox and J. G. Parker, the latter of Washington; Jacob Zouck, of Hanover, Pa., and Edward Hely, of Railroad, Pa. Messrs. Reen, Hocker and Zouck are new members.

Rev. Dr. E. J. Wolf, of Gettysburg, read a long report on the state of the church, which provoked considerable opposition, on the ground that it was too pessimistic in its tone, though its statement in effect was confessed to be faithful. A motion prevailed to recommit the report.

Dr. O. Wolf said: "There is a woeful lack of spiritually and godliness in the denomination and the fire of piety burns low." He continued:

"Our church has suffered very seriously from defective government, and as long as loud voices are heard for individualism and unbridled liberty, as long as the general good must be subordinated to the right of private judgment, our progress must halt and our institution languish. The love of many for the church has grown cold. There is no disguising the prevalent laxity and barrenness—the low estate of piety—among us. The scramble for dollars leaves little time for the care of soul."

The report of foreign missions was again under consideration, during which the irritating questions connected with foreign missions were fully ventilated by both side. The synod, on montion of Dr. Sigmmaster, unanimously adopted this resolution:

That is it the sense of this General Synod that the Board of Foreign Missions in declining to return Rev. N. E. Yeiser to India acted in good faith and with wisdom and that no impeachment of the action or character of Rev. N. E. Yeiser as a missionary was intended.

Thus ends the contention which has disturbed the General Synod for several years, and the result is that of general satisfaction.

The foreign mission question came up once more, and Rev. Dr. Kuhlman, of Maryland, presented the reasons for the board's appointment of an associate secretary in the person of Rev. L. B. Wolfe, a step which had been very much criticised.

Dr. Kuhlman's defense was so convincing that the synod, on motian of Rev. Dr. Hufford, of the Eastern Pennsylvania Synod, adopted without a dissenting voice a resolution approving of the board's action.

At the closing session of the synod Dr. E. J. Wolf submitted a revised report on the condition of the church, which was immediately adopted in place of the first report, which aroused a protest from the delegates earlier in the week.

YORK COUNTY DEMOCRATS.

The York County Democratic Convention last Tuesday selected the following ticket: For Sheriff, E. C. Peeling, First ward, York; for Register, Dr. Z. C. Myers, Ninth ward, York; for District Attorney, A. C. Wieet, of Spring Grove; for Commissioners' Clerk, J. T. Fitzpatrick, of Fawn; for Poor Director, A. J. Myers, of Manchester; for County Surveyor, B. F. Koller, of Shrewsbury.

Among the new rules adopted is the following:

FIREMEN AT WESTMINSTER.

The Program for the Occasion—Large Crowds Expected.

Westminster, Md., has made extensive preparations to entertain the crowds of visiting firemen and others, who will meet there this week.

Gov. Smith and Mayor Hayes have been invited to review the grand parade, on Wednesday, and award the prize for largest number of uniformed men in line.

Mr. J. M. Reifsnider, chief marshal of the parade, has decided upon the route which will be over the principal streets of the city, and will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

A synopsis of the program for the two days is as follows:

WEDNESDAY.

7 a. m., to 12 m. reception of delegates and visiting companies by reception committee.
2 00 p. m., Grand parade.
7.30 p. m. to 9 p. m., Grand Band Concert.
8.30 p. m., Ninth Annual Convention of Maryland State Firemen's Association, at Odd Fellow's Hall, to which all firemen are invited.

THURSDAY.

10.00 a. m., Second Meeting of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.
11 00 a. m., Hook and Ladder Contest.
12 00 m., Steam Engine Contest.
2.30 p. m., Races and Prize Drill.
8.30 p. m., Grand Band Concert.

The list of prizes is as follows:

Steam Engine Contest	Open	$50	$25
Hook and Ladder Contest	"	75	25
Prize Drill Contest	"	75	25
Hose Race for Championship Maryland State Firemen's Association		75	25
Largest number uniformed men in line		25

Not less than three entries to any contest and three starters.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Governor Stone on Wednesday signed the Senate bill providing for a submission to a vote of the people at the next general election a proposed amendment to the Constitution to substitute voting machines for the present system of balloting.

Unless the unexpected happens the proceedings of the Legislature this week will be devoid of general interest. The Fox Capitol bill will be taken up in the House this morning for third reading and final passage, and it is conceded that the measure will pass. It will have to go back to the Senate for concurrence in amendments before it is sent to the Governor for approval.

The Snyder bill, appropriating $1,000,-000 to cover the deficiency in the school appropriation, will likely be passed finally by the House to day, and will be promptly signed by the Governor. The most important legislation on the House second reading calendar are the legislative apportionment bills and the Shutt Constitutional Convention bill, neither of which is expected to pass.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of changing the date of final adjournment from June 27 to June 21, and a resolution having this for its purpose will be introduced in the House. Speaker Marshall says that the Legislature cannot possibly finish its business earlier than the 27th, and it is not likely that the resolution will be adopted.

The hand of death has again visited our community and has removed from our midst a highly respected citizen, Theodore R. Horner, of Cumberland township, who died suddenly of heart disease, on Monday, June 3, at his residence near the Taneytown and Gettysburg road. He was aged 56 years, 1 month and 18 days. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Virginia Hesson, of near Harney, and three sons, Ruel, Mead and David, and daughters Leah, Virginia and Elsie. The funeral was held Wednesday morning with services at the house and interment in Evergreen cemetery, Gettysburg, Rev. Riddle, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Emmitsburg, of which the deceased was a member, officiating. Mr. Horner enlisted in 1863 in Co. B. 21st Penna. cavalry and served 9 months and then re-enlisted in Warren's Independent cavalry for 100 days, and then re-enlisted in the 172nd cavalry during the war. The bearers were Wm. B. Walker, Wm. H. Cromer, Wm. McNair, Josephus Mills, Harry Shriver and Edward Wenchoff.

Miss Lotta Maring, of near this place, spent last week in Baltimore.

Children's Day was observed on Sunday morning, June 9, at Mount Joy church. The day was all that could be desired for a gathering of children in the country. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers, and a large turn out of happy children. The exercises consisted of music, responsive reading and recitations by some of the large scholars. The primary department gave some recitations and singing under their leader, Josephus Mills. The exercises were well rendered and the participants deserve special praise for the interest manifested in the service, under their leaders, John W. Benner, Supt., and Geo. P. Black, assistant, as Rev. Minnick was absent.

Luther Hilterbrick and family, of Harney; Homer Hill and family, of Gettysburg, and A. S. Mills and family, of this place, were guests of Harry J. Shriver on Sunday. J. F. B.

VETERANS AT GETTYSBURG.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED VETERANS OF THE CIVIL WAR GATHER IN OUR HISTORIC TOWN.

Same Place Selected for Encampment of Next Year—M'Cauley Chosen Commander—Woman's Relief Corps and Ladies of G. A. R. Elect Officers—Survivors Hold Re-Union.

Gettysburg was filled with G. A. R. veterans and their wives who came here to attend the annual encampment, last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Most notable on Tuesday was the arrival of the Scotland Orphans' School children, under command of Captain G. W. Skinner, with a band. They attended a song service at the National Cemetery rostrum Tuesday afternoon and gave a drill on the College Campus in the evening. Their drilling was perfect and gave a great deal of pleasure to the large audience present.

Governor Stone telegraphed his inability to attend on account of the pressure of business at his office in Harrisburg.

Tuesday evening Xavier Hall was crowded at the camp-fire in honor of the distinguished guests. General C. H. T. Collis extended the hospitalities of the town, and was responded to by Department Commander Miller. General Collis said in part:

Mr. Commander and Comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Department of Pennsylvania.

The citizens of Gettysburg have done me the great honor to select me as their mouth-piece to extend to you a hearty welcome to this historic town. Though I am not a native here, nor to the manor born, I love it for the deeds of heroism, self-sacrifice and patriotism performed here which will forever make it memorable.

It goes without saying that no body of men could be so gratefully received here as the citizen soldiery of Pennsylvania who served in the Union Army during the war of the rebellion and especially those of you who enjoyed the glory of serving on this field.

It is an oft told story, worth repeating, of what the Keystone State did here—She furnished in this battle seventy-four regiments and four batteries. She gave to the army its commander, George Gordon Meade, of Philadelphia. The leader of the advance who lost his life just after opening the engagement with a Philadelphia regiment was John F. Reynolds, of Lancaster. The great soldier whose courage and magnificent presence checked the route on the evening of the first, brought order out of chaos and sent word to his superior that this was the place to fight it out, was Winfield Scott Hancock, of Norristown. (great applause).

It was a Pennsylvania Brigade of six regiments, the 57th, 63rd, 68th, 105th, 114th and 141st, which received the enfilading onslaught of Longstreet in the Peach Orchard. To Birney and Humphreys, both Philadelphians, belong a great share of the glory for the tenacity with which the lines were held from the Rogers House to Little Round Top. It was Geary, afterward Governor of your State, who, on returning to his old line from an effort to aid his beleagured comrades in another part of the field, found his entrenchments occupied by the rebel general Johnson and promptly drove him out with the bayonet. It was the division of Pennsylvania Reserves who finally repulsed the enemy on the Second, under the intrepid leadership of Crawford, McCullough and Fisher. (applause).

The terrific onslaught of Pickett's division on the Third was met and handsomely repulsed by a Philadelphia brigade, and the scheme of Stuart's cavalry to move around our right flank upon the same day was cleverly and bravely checked by that modest soldier, David McMurtrie Gregg, of Huntingdon. (great applause).

Thus during every hour and upon almost every acre of the field of those three days' terrible fighting Pennsylvania did something to add lustre to her history.

For these reasons I am bid to say to you, you are thrice welcome to the town which your prowess rescued from the enemy and to tell you that it belongs to you. It is to be hoped that you will thoroughly enjoy yourselves. You will find that the girls look just the same to you as they did nearly forty years ago, though unfortunately you don't look just the same to them. (laughter). Some of them, no doubt, would like to have lived when their mothers did and we were young fellows, but, girls, we knew your mothers and loved them and they were quite as handsome and attractive as you are. (renewed laughter).

In your meandering over the field with which some of you are so familiar, you will have an opportunity of seeing what your Government, through its able commissioners, is doing to make it attractive to the visitor, and you will have also an opportunity of giving the lie to the assertion that republics are ungrateful.

But, soldiers of Pennsylvania, what you see here and what you hear here, might as well be unseen and unsaid unless your visit makes some useful impression which you will carry away with you and think of when you leave us. And if I can give you something which will set you to thinking and working I shall congratulate myself.

When you visit the National Cemetery, as you all will, you will see a great monument erected by a proud and grateful State, superb in art, touching in sentiment, commemorating the valor and patriotic devotion of the soldiers of the Empire State, who gave their lives here to maintain the honor of the flag and the integrity of the Union. Down on Hancock's front, marking imperishably the fame of the Vermont brigade, is a colossal shaft surmounted by the gallant Stannard, erected by the granite state.

Even Minnesota, then an infant in the family, with just a single regiment, nearly all of whom were slain, has reared a monument to the men who gave their lives to save the South from her mad freak of severance from the rest of us.

At this point General Collis spoke of the erection of a Pennsylvania State monument and referred to the bill presented before the Legislature for an appropriation for that purpose by Representative Garvin, of this county.

At the Eagle Hotel which was the headquarters of the Department of the G. A. R., the following officers of the different orders were registered: Department Commander General Charles Miller, of Franklin; Senior Vice Commander John N. Banks, Indiana; Junior Vice Commander William R. Parks, Easton; Medical Director George W. Parker, Philadelphia, and Chaplain John W. Sayres, of Philadelphia. The Woman's Relief Corps—President Mrs. Alfaretta Divine, of Rolfe; Senior Vice President Miss Lucy Alvord, of Lykens; Junior Vice President Mrs. Hannah James, Philadelphia; Treasurer Mrs. Kate McDonald, Titusville, and Secretary Miss Abby Lynch, of Allegheny. The Ladies of the G. A. R.—President Mrs. Ella Jones, of Pittsburg; Senior Vice President Mrs. Wotenhouse, of Philadelphia; Junior Vice President Mrs. J. Blair, of Philadelphia; Chaplain Mrs. H. Sewall, Easton; Treasurer Mrs. Frane Holgate, of Laplume.

Wednesday.

The first business session of the encampment was held in Xavier Hall Wednesday. The entire session was taken up in holding the annual election, which resulted in the selection of Auditor General Levi P. McCauley for Department Commander, receiving 389 votes to 211 for Thad Mahon, of Chambersburg, and 36 for H. C. Demming, of Harrisburg.

Dr. M. B. Hughes was elected medical director and Rev John W. Sayres, of Philadelphia, chaplain.

The annual reports submitted showed the death of 900 members of the order during the past year, and that there are at present 29,301 veterans belonging to the Pennsylvania Department. The report shows that eleven posts have handed in their charters and that there are now only 560 posts in the State.

Gettysburg was selected as the place for holding the encampment next year.

For the first time in the history of the department the annual parade of veterans was not held, owing to the fact that the advanced age of most of the veterans would not permit them to take part.

The survivors of the Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Cavalry, held their annual reunion Wednesday afternoon on the spot where, thirty-eight years ago, the regiment assisted in defeating the Confederate cavalry. Addresses were made by President A. J. Speese, Philadelphia; Capt. W. E Miller, Carlisle; John O. Hunterson, Philadelphia, and Capt. Samuel C. Wagner, Philadelphia. The Fifty-fifth Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry, held its tenth annual reunion in G. A. R. Hall.

The One Hundred and Forty-eighth and Thirteenth Pennsylvania Reserves and the 6th Pennsylvania Reserves also held their regimental re-unions.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected the following officers: President, Mrs. M. O. Monfort, of Mauch Chunk; Senior Vice president, Mrs. Anna Martin, Renova; Junior Vice President, Mrs. Callie Myers, Irwin; Treasurer, Mrs Jennie B. Agnew, Tionesta. The following were elected directors of the Memorial Home Association of the Woman's Relief Corps:

General Charles Miller, Dr. M. J. Chapman, Mrs. Martha Sherman, Mrs. Helen Morrison, Mrs. Alfaretta Divine, Mrs. Jane A. Marr, W. H. Grey, Mrs. E. A. Bayden and Mrs. Charles J. Cummings. Mrs. Anna Kitzmiller, Gettysburg, delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by Mrs. Helen Morrison, of Philadelphia.

Wednesday evening the Woman's Relief Corps tendered a reception to the veterans. The following ladies acted as a Reception Committee: Miss Lucy Alvord, Mrs. H. James, Mrs. A. Lynch, Mrs. Kate L. McDonald, Mrs. Jennie Bunker, Mrs. Estella Hall, Laura Willow and Mrs. A. Devine.

The Women of the G. A. R. held the opening session of their convention Wednesday. The following were elected officers of the Board of Trustees of the Hawkins Home:

President, Mrs. E. J. Cullingwood.
Sen. vice president, Mrs. Kate Downes.
Jun vice president, Mrs. Susan Sloan.
Treasurer, Mrs. J. Slicker.

(Levi G. McCauley, who was elected department Commander, enlisted in April, 1861, in a company which soon afterwards became part of the Seventh Pennsylvania Reserves. He saw considerable service and rose to the rank of first lieutenant of Company F. In the battle of Charles City Crossroad he lost his right arm by a gun-shot wound. He was subsequently captured and confined in Libby Prison. He was promoted to Captain and remained with his company until the organization of the Veteran Reserve Corps, when he was breveted major. He was mustered out June 30, 1866.

The convention was succesful throughout and although much interest was felt in the election of officers, especially of Department Commander, the meetings were entirely harmonious. The sessions of the G. A. R. were held in Xavier Hall, and not in Brua Chapel, the arrangement for meeting places having been changed at a late hour, as Brua Chapel was found to be not large enough for the body.

Among the well-known G. A. R. men attending the encampment were: Thomas J. Stewart, R. B Rickets, Louis Wagner, Past Commanders Dau, Cummings, Emsley, Vanderslice and Sample.

The veterans and visitors present numbered about 4000.

Thursday.

The following newly elected officers were installed Thursday: Department Commander, Adjutant General Levi G. McCauley, West Chester; senior vice commander, A. B. Stevens, Scranton; junior vice commander, John Nevin, Altoona; medical director, Dr. M. B. Hughes; chaplain, Rev. John Sayers, Philadelphia.

Department Commander McCauley appointed the following officers: Assistant adjutant general, Charles Kennedy; assistant quartermaster general, Edwin Walton; assistant inspector general, Charles A. Suydam, all of Philadelphia. William J. Wray, of Philadelphia; Harvey Miller, Frankford; George J. Schwartz, Philadelphia, and H. H. Bengough, of Pittsburg, were chosen as council of administration.

Forty delegates to the National G. A. R. Convention were also elected.

One of the resolutions adopted by the encampment is as follows:

Resolved, That the delegates to the National Encampment be directed to vote for a resolution requesting President McKinley to at once remove H. Clay Evans from the position of Pension Commissioner, on account of the unfair and unpatriotic actions toward the comrades of the war and their widows.

The Ladies of the G. A. R. Thursday elected the following officers: President Mrs. Cassie Roche, Scranton; senior vice president, Mrs. Mary A. Jones, Pittsburg; junior vice president, Mrs. Ray Orchard, Philadelphia; treasurer, Mrs. J. Troxell, Allentown; secretary, F. A. Holgate, Laplume; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Martin, Philadelphia, and seventeen delegates to the National Encampment at Cleveland.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DAY.

The Mont Alto C. E. Assembly Association, which includes York, Perry, Adams, Dauphin, Cumberland and Franklin counties, will hold its eleventh annual assembly at Mont Alto, Thursday, Aug. 1, 1901.

Rev. L. W. Munhall, D. D., and Rev. C. E. Eberman are the speakers for the day. Dr. Munhall will deliver his great lecture "The Bible the Word of God." Rev. Eberman is State President of C. E. and is always acceptable to Endeavorers.

when you are well, to rub and scrub, but when the back aches and the head throbs, a woman's work is hourly torment.

No woman can be strong and healthy of body who is the victim of those womanly diseases which are often responsible for feminine sufferings.

Women who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of diseases of the womanly organs, say that work doesn't tire them any more. "Favorite Prescription" regulates the periods, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither opium, cocaine or any other narcotic.

"I had poor health for nine years (ever since the birth of my child)," writes Mrs. Armintie Watkins, of Acme, Kanawha Co., W. Va. "I had female weakness, was very irregular and would suffer untold misery. Our family doctor did not do me any good and I concluded to write to you. When I wrote I had no idea that I would ever get well but when your letter reached me I began to have hope. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines as directed and began to improve in strength. I was soon able to do the work for my family of six. I think there never were such medicines in the world. I took eight bottles, three of 'Favorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pellets.'"

$100 Reward, $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Earl McClellan, son of George A. McClellan, was run over by a wagon last Wednesday and had his left leg injured severely. Dr. H. L. Diehl dressed the wound.

DEATHS.

We noted last week the death of Edgar S. Martin, which occurred Tuesday morning.

The funeral took place Thursday, when mass was celebrated by Father William E. Martin, assisted by Fathers Crotty and Kohl.

Mr. Martin was a son of Capt. and Mrs. Wm. J. Martin and was born August 2nd, 1869. He married June 6, 1899, Miss Rebecca Topper, who survives him. At the marriage Fathers Martin, Crotty and Kohl officiated.

We take the following from the Balto. American of yesterday:

Mrs. Helen V. Lillybridge, the wife of Octavius C. Lillybridge, the well-known veteran sergeant of Company C, Fifth Regiment, M. N. G., died at her home, 1013 West Mulberry street, on Saturday afternoon at 1 30 o'clock. Her death was due to acute pneumonia and asthma, and her last illness was only 2½ days in duration. Mrs. Lillybridge was a native of Gettysburg, and was Miss Helen V. White. Her husband was a member of the Tenth Virginia Regiment during the Civil War, their marriage not taking place until after that struggle. After the battle of Gettysburg Miss White went out to look for her lover among the killed or wounded, but did not find him, and so turned her hand to nursing the wounded and sick Confederate soldiers who were left there.

The sorrel pacing horse, Delmont, belonging to John E. Hughs, died last Thursday of colic.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The exercises of Children's Day in the Presbyterian Church followed the program provided by the Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, entitled "God is Love." The most interesting feature was an exercise consisting of recitations and songs by the children of the Primary and Intermediate Departments. The Church was very beautifully decorated with maple boughs, mock-oranges, privet and roses. The pastor gave a short address on the text "Fight the good fight of faith." An offering for the work of Sabbath School Mission amounted to more than double that of last year for the same cause.

In Christ Lutheran church the service consisted largely of a musical program. Rev. Mr. Coover, the pastor, delivered an appropriate sermon. The church was beautifully decorated.

A beautiful service, "Time of Beauty," was rendered in an entertaining manner by the Reformed Sunday School Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. An address was delivered by Mr. E. T. Rhodes, a student at Franklin and Marshall Seminary, Lancaster. An exercise entitled "Sunbeams," was given by eight children, Charles Butt, Mary Wierman, Ruth Faber, Rillie Plank, Perry Tawney, Marion Deardorff, Clyde Bream, and Nellie Williams; also recitations by John Rupp, Earnest Myers and Morris Baker.

Children's Day services were held by St. James Sunday School Sunday morning. An exercise entitled "The Best We Have," was given by Miss Minter; "Lessons of Life," by Misses Garlach, Sacks, Diller and Foreman, followed by an address by the pastor, Rev. A. R. Steck, subject, "The Church's Relation to Orphans." A collection was taken for the benefit of the Loysville Orphan Home.

COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The exercises of the sixty-seventh commencement of Pennsylvania College will begin with the Baccalaureate Sermon by William M. Baum, D. D., Class of '46, of Philadelphia, in College Church Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

The discourse before the Young Men's Christian Association will be delivered Sunday evening by Rev. Prof. Henry W. Temple, of Washington, Pa., in College Church.

On Monday at 2 p. m. the annual Senior class field sports on Nixon Field will take place and in the evening the concert by the musical clubs in Brua Chapel will be given.

On Tuesday at 8 a. m. the meeting of the board of trustees will be held and at 10 a. m. junior class oratorical contest for the Reding Prize in Brua Chapel; 3 p. m. Senior Class Day exercises on the College campus; 3 p m. annual business meeting of the alumni association, in Brua Chapel; 8.30 p. m. President McKnight's reception to the graduating class, alumni and friends of the College, in Recitation Hall; 10 p. m. re-unions of classes and Greek Letter Societies.

On Wednesday at 9 a. m. orations by ten members of Senior class will be given followed by the graduating exercises, conferring of degrees, etc, in Brua Chapel; 12.30 p. m. alumni collation in Recitation Hall.

PASTORAL CHANGES.

Conowago Chapel presented a scene last Monday morning that will live long in the memory of those who were in attendance at the Mass said by Rev. Father Cowardin, the last Jesuit at that place. Long before 6 o'clock, persons began pouring in from all directions to see and hear the farewell Mass of their beloved pastor. Father Cowardin, before leaving the Sanctuary, turned to those present and gave them his last blessing; tears sprang to their eyes and loud sobs resounded all over the church.

He took the morning train for Baltimore, where he will take a much-needed rest and thence go to St. Mary's Church, Boston.

Rev. Timothy Kennedy, who has served as pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, New Oxford, and Paradise Church for the past seven months, will take charge of a parish at Williamstown, Dauphin county. His successor is Father Reudter, of Dallastown, York county.

Father Thompson, who has had charge of St. Joseph's church at Bonneauville, has been transferred to the charge at Lewistown, Mifflin county, while Father McCarthy, of the Lewistown charge takes the place of Rev. Thompson at Bonneauville.

Father Kumerant who was to succeed the Jesuit Fathers at Conowago has declined, and no other appointment has yet been made known.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Annual Convention of the Harrisburg District League to be Held in Gettysburg This Week—Information About the League.

The Epworth League is the name of the young people's society of the Methodist church. It was organized May 15, 1889, in the city of Cleveland by the amalgamation of five Methodist young peoples' societies.

For the effective carrying on of its work the League has been divided and sub-divided and organized into various departments. To illustrate, the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church has the following divisions: The General Conference District Epworth League; the District (Presiding Elder's) Epworth League; the Chapter (the League in the local churches).

There may be Sub-District, Conference and State Leagues, but they are not parts of the system, and do not exist as the League itself does by the authority of the General Conference of the church, for the general direction and management of the League is vested in the Board of Control, a body composed of fifteen persons elected by the General Conference District Leagues, and fifteen persons selected by the board of bishops. With the exception of the editor of the Epworth Herald, who is elected by the General Conference, this Board of Control elects the general officers of the League, which consist in a President, First Vice President, Second Vice President, Third Vice President, Fourth Vice President, General Secretary, General Treasurer.

Under the supervision of the General Cabinet the Epworth League has had a remarkable growth, as may be seen by the last report of the General Secretary of the League: "A dozen years ago the Epworth League had no regularly organized Chapter. To day it has almost twenty-one thousand. Twelve years ago it had a total membership of twenty-seven. To-day it has a million and a half. Twelve years ago the Junior League had scarcely been dreamed of. To-day it is the most promising division of the great Epworth army, having a membership of tens of thousands." Twelve years ago a suggestion to establish a newspaper as the League organ was looked upon as a most doubtful experiment, and prediction of failure were freely made. Nevertheless a sixteen-page, now twenty-four, paper entitled The Epworth Herald was launched, with Rev. J. F. Berry as editor. The new paper received a most cordial reception. Subscriptions, which was only one dollar per year for a single copy and eighty cents in clubs, began to pour in, and have continued to do so. At the close of the first year the list of subscribers stood at 42,000. The end of the second year saw the 60,000 post left behind. The third year lifts the figure to 75,000. In 1896 the subscription list exceeded the 100,000 line, and has been going up ever since. To-day its circulation exceeds that of any church paper in the world.

Twelve years ago the Epworth wheel was just beginning to move in a slow and labored way. It motions have been accelerated with each passing month, until now it is rolling with speed and triumph around the world. There are Chapters in twenty foreign countries, ranging in latitude from Norway to Malaysia. Longitudinally it belts the globe. It has been estimated that a million and a half people will this summer turn their thoughts toward San Francisco, where, from July 18th to July 21st, the Fifth International Convention of the Epworth League will be held. The meetings of this widely-known body of christian workers have proven so interesting in past years that multitudes are anxious to cross the continent this year to attend the conference. Other conventions of this body of christian workers are proportionately popular. Especially is this true of the District Conventions, one of which is to be held in Gettysburg June 13th and 14th. An opportunity will be given and an invitation extended to the people of Gettysburg to attend this convention and enjoy the excellent program which has been arranged for that occasion.

The program for the convention here was published in full in our last issue. Sessions will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Thursday evening at 7.15 o'clock, Friday at 9 a. m., 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

The officers of the League are as follows:

President, Joseph P. Luce, Harrisburg.

1st Vice President, Frank H. Zinn, Newport.

2nd Vice President, George W. Hayes, McConnellsburg.

3rd Vice President, Miss Anna M. Smith, York.

4th Vice President, Miss Marjorie Beard, Waynesboro.

Recording Secretary, Miss Magdalen L. Keith, Gettysburg.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. S. Burek, Carlisle.

Treasurer, John M. Sayford, Harrisburg.

Junior Superintendent, Mrs. F. C. Buyers, Liverpool.

Superintendent Epworth Guards, James W. Barker, Harrisburg.

Missionary Superintendent, Robert B. Foster, Harrisburg.

Advisory Committee, Rev. E. H. Yocum, Harrisburg; Rev. V. T. Rue, Gettysburg; Mr. H. C. White, Chambersburg.

Mr. Milton R. Remmel, of this place, is the chairman of the committee of arrangements.

WESTERN MARYLAND RAILROAD.

Opening Day Pen-Mar.

The season at Pen-Mar will open on Saturday, June 22nd, and the Pen-Mar Express will commence running on that date. This will be a gala occasion, as excursions will be run from Harrisburg, Pa., and Glen Rock, Pa., as well as the usual large Opening Day excursions from Baltimore. Many improvements have been made at Pen-Mar for the coming season, among them being an entirely new amusement department, including a beautiful moving picture exhibition, an enlarged orchestra, and a handsome and commodious auditorium, just erected.

Everything points to a great Opening Day at Pen-Mar and a very successful season for the year 1901.

Excursion tickets will be on sale, and full information can be obtained from local ticket agent.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The School Board of New Oxford borough has been organized for the ensuing term by election of the following officers: President, Z. H. Cashman; Secretary, I. R. Wehler; Treasurer, G. T. Himes. An eight months term was decided upon and a 3 and 1 mill tax laid. The following teachers were elected for the term: No. 1, Prof. Daniel Ruff; No. 2, Miss Eva Stock; No. 3 Miss Elmyra Ruff.

The new School Board of East Berlin organized by electing the following officers: Pres. Dr. F. C. Wolf; Secretary, Dr. R. P. Feiser; Treasurer, Isaac Miller. Term nine months. Salary same as last year.

The farm of the late William Etzler, dec'd, 112 acres, along the York 'pike, about 2½ miles from New Oxford, was sold at public sale by the executrix, to Charles Forry, residing thereon, for $60.60 per acre.

The Stockholders of the Emmitsburg Railroad held the annual meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year at the office of the company in Emmittsburg recently, and the following president and directors were re-elected. W. A. Himes, of New Oxford, Pa., and F. O'Hara, J. Sebold, B. Jenkins, J. K. Nussear and J. H. Brawner, of Maryland.

An effort is being made by some of New Oxford's citizens to organize a Building and Improvement Association.

The salary of Hanover's postmaster has been increased from $2,100 to $2,300.

John A. Collins, of Mountjoy township, brought a stock of rye to this office last week which measured seven feet, seven and a half inches in length.

The Emmitsburg Water Company elected the following directors: I. S. Annan, Lewis M. Motter, E. L. Annan, Eugene L. Rowe, J. Thomas and Ezra K. Zimmerman.

The Littlestown School Board elected the following officers: President, Dr. U. L. Meckley; Secretary, Emory Crouse; Treasurer, Dr. S. B. Weaver. The following teachers were elected: No. 1, W. Archer Burgoon; No. 2, Edw. LeFevre; No. 3, Miss Nedah Marks; No. 4, Miss Helen Stonesifer; No. 5, Miss Lizzie Nix.

Last Friday morning while William Harman, of New Oxford, was driving across the W. W. R. R. track at Gulden's station an engine struck his wagon and wrecked it complete. He escaped with some slight bruises about his face. The horses was somewhat injured.

Joseph A. A. Plank, of Cumberland Township, caught with his hands on May 29th, in Willoughby Run, a carp that measured 27 inches in length and weighed 7½lbs.

The fair now in progress for the benefit of Immaculate Conception church in New Oxford has thus far been successful. Miss Fannie Steffie, one of the contestants for a gold watch, had $83.65, and her opponent, Miss M. Staub, $61.35.

Children's Day exercises last Sunday, at Hunterstown Presbyterian Church, were largely attended. Rev. James A. McAllister, of Gettysburg, gave an interesting address.

In the fall of 1899 Rev. E Bridenbaugh of this place, bought a lot of apples from Rufus Lauver, of Butler township. Yesterday he gave one of them, in perfect condition, to Mr. Lauver. It is seldom that apples keep so long.

ALL ABOUT THE FARM.

MANY DIFFERENT SUBJECTS IN WHICH THE FARMER IS INTERESTED

The grass on lawns has been favored by the rains of May, and no doubt the lawn mower has been used frequently by many. Unless the soil is very fertile the lawn will become thin in grass in time, owing to the withdrawal of plant food every time it is mowed. Some persons who have beautiful lawns, which are kept clean by using the lawn mower every time the grass is high enough to be cut, do not understand why the grass begins to die and thin out in a year or two. To preserve a lawn it should be covered with horse manure late in the fall and raked over in the spring. If manure is not easily obtainable use a mixture of 50 pounds of sulphate of potash and the same quantity of superphosphate. Early in the spring apply 25 pounds of nitrate of soda. These quantities are for one-fourth of an acre. About 25 pounds of air slacked lime may be also applied early in the spring, before using the nitrate.

If the garden plants are backward owing to cold rains, use a small quantity of nitrate of soda along the rows, close to the plants, but do not apply it on the leaves. As soon as a shower comes and dissolves it the plants will take on a green tinge and grow rapidly. It is the best substance that can be used where plants appear sickly or yellow.

The package will sell the goods in any market, even if the goods are not of the best, as appearances in market convey the idea of quality. Buyers are not always capable of discriminating between the best and the inferior, hence much depends upon the packing. It is claimed that Danish butter is no better than that produced in America and Canadian dairies, yet Danish butter holds the highest place in the English market because the Danish dairymen use extra care in shipping their butter to market in a manner to attract attention and impress upon the buyer that it is of the best quality.

If there are any bare places in the pasture held scratch them with a harrow and sow seed upon them. If the pasture is thin take the stock off and give the grass an opportunity to grow, as it will otherwise be destroyed by close grazing and trampling. No pasture can last without having a rest from continual cropping.

Careful examination should be made for borers in trees. The longer it is deferred the more difficult it will be to kill them, as they go deeper into the wood. The trees should be examined often in order to guard against missing a single one. They can be easily detected by the "chips" or refuse at the entrance.

The spraying of kerosene, or kerosene emulsion, on trees should be done judiciously. Pure kerosene will injure any tree, destroying peach trees almost instantly, and even when the emulsion is used it should be well diluted. No inexperienced person should use kerosene emulsion on orchard trees, though petroleum, applied in winter, has been recommended as efficaceous and harmless.

The castor oil bean plant is one of the prettiest and most ornamental that can be used along boarders, its leaves being a beautiful green. The cotton plant can be grown in this section to the blossom stage, but will not mature, though the seed should be planted in hotbeds early and transplanted. The canna is another very showy plant, and it makes a fine contrast with castor bean plant.

Watering the flower bed improves the opportunities of weeds and grass as well as of the flowering plants. The plant bed should be closely watched and all weeds and grass picked out by hand until the flower plants are large enough to permit of working the plot with a hoe.

The young pullets that have been selected for laying next fall should not be forced by feeding too heavily or grain. They will thrive much better if allowed to roam at will and pick up their food, but a mess of cut bone at night will be of assistance. The early-hatched pullets only should be kept for winter laying, as the late ones do not usually begin to lay until spring. If they do not grow examine them carefully for the large lice on their necks, heads and bodies. Dusting with insect powder once a week will be an advantage, but the most important matter is to keep their quarters free of lice, which may be done by spraying the poultry house once a week with kerosene emulsion. The roots should be anointed freely with crude petroleum. It is the best plan, when raising pullets for winter laying, to cull out all the inferior ones and send them with the young cockerels to market.

By placing small boxes in trees one can have the birds come and stay. For wrens the entrance to the box should not exceed an inch in diameter. Keep no cats to destroy the birds, as they catch them on the ground. A bird box on a pole will be taken possession of by martens, which can be protected from cats by winding barbed wire closely around the pole.

Beginners in farming, especially those with limited capital, should endeavor to produce early and late crops, so as to have cash coming in all the time, if possible. One of the essentials for quick returns is poultry. The hens should lay every day, with good management. One or two good cows will also be found servicable, as milk, butter and eggs are cash at all seasons. Small fruits, such as strawberries, currants, gooseberries, raspberries and blackberries, soon give returns, but grapes and orchard fruits require more time. On a small farm it may not pay to depend upon the cereal crops. Stock fruit and vegetables give better profits and bring in cash long before the harvest comes for corn. There is nothing that will give larger and quicker profits in proportion to capital invested than fowls, and as they multiply rapidly the number can be increased every year. The fowls will also consume much waste material that cannot be otherwise utilized.

As flies will now annoy stock, all cracks in the stables should be closed and mosquito bars or mesh placed at the windows and doors. The cows will give more milk if thus protected and the horses be in better condition for service. Remove all manure promptly and keep the stables clean.

The fact that there are hundreds of farmers who do not know one breed of cattle from another has caused many of them to make mistakes, or even fail in their business. Some of them use the Jerseys when they wish to increase the quantity of milk yielded, instead of some breed that excels in producing milk. While the Jerseys are excellent producers[redacted], yet they are preferred more for the richness of their milk rather than for yields. The farmers who study the peculiarities of breeds and are able to select those which are most suitable for their farms, whether of cattle, sheep, swine or horses, possess great advantages over those who know nothing of the merits of breeds.

Wood ashes give the best results on pasture land, orchards small fruits and on clover. To purchase wood ashes is a risk as it is difficult to procure two lots alike in composition, while exposure to rains may cause loss of potash by leaching. If one has ashes it will pay to use them as they contain both lime and potash, but it will be found better and cheaper to purchase potash in the forms sold by fertilizer manufacturers than to buy ashes on the market.

CANCER

Sufferers from this horrible malady nearly always inherit it—not necessarily from the parents, but may be from some remote ancestor, for Cancer often runs through several generations. This deadly poison may lay dormant in the blood for years, or until you reach middle life, then the first little sore or ulcer makes its appearance—or a swollen gland in the breast, or some other part of the body, gives the first warning.

To cure Cancer thoroughly and permanently all the poisonous virus must be eliminated from the blood—every vestage of it driven out. This S S S does, and is the only medicine that can reach deep-seated, obstinate blood troubles like this. When all the poison has been forced out of the system the Cancer heals, and the disease never returns.

Cancer begins often in a small way, as the following letter from Mrs Shirer shows:

A small pimple came on my jaw about an inch below the ear on the left side of my face. It gave me no pain or inconvenience and I should have forgotten about it had it not begun to inflame and itch; it would bleed a little then scab over, but would not heal. This continued for some time, when my jaw began to swell, becoming very painful. The Cancer began to eat and spread, until it was as large as a half dollar when I heard of S S S and determined to give it a fair trial, and it was remarkable what a wonderful effect it had from the very beginning; the sore began to heal and after taking a few bottles disappeared entirely. This was two years ago; there are still no signs of the Cancer and my general health continues good.—MRS R SHIRER, La Plata, Mo.

SSS is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable. Send for our free book on Cancer, containing valuable and interesting information about this disease, and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge for medical advice.

SENSIBLE CONCLUSION

Two doctors once had a disagreement, as the best of doctors sometimes will have—and lost their tempers.

"I hesitate to say just what I think of you," angrily exclaimed one of the two, "for you have not many years to live! Consumption has marked you for a victim."

"Oh, it has, has it? How do you know?"

"By the clubbing of your finger," referring to the wasting away of the fingers near where they join the hands. "Do I need to call your attention to that?"

"Perhaps not," retorted the other. "But do you know you bear the unmistakable indication of an early death yourself?"

"Where, sir?"

"In those hollows at the back of your neck near the head, where you see them. They denote a fatal lack of vitality."

"In that case," rejoined the one who had spoken first, extending his hand, "we are foolish to quarrel. Let us prescribe for each other."

They are still alive and apparently in excellent health.—Youth's Companion.

WHERE HE FAILED

The young man drew himself up to his full height.

"I have," he cried, "unsullied character, a versatile mind and strenuous biceps."

The young girl yawned and seemed interested.

He was quick to push his advantage.

"I am the possessor of a town and country house, a yacht, a stable of thoroughbreds and a box at the opera."

She hesitated, and a slight flush betrayed that she had been listening.

"I have got," he continued with a certain fierceness, "thirty servants, forty pairs of trousers, fifty ancestors, three automobiles, six prize bull pups and an army commission."

Ah! she has found her tongue at last.

"And how many gold medals?" she lisped.

The young man shuddered.

He felt that he had lost. He had played nervily and high, but she was above his limit.

A CHICAGO SOLOMON

Police Justice John J. Mahoney gave a good reproduction of the judgement of Solomon not long ago. Two Germans had each other arrested on the charge of stealing a fine dachshund, which they both claimed. "That dog is mine," said one. "I wouldn't take $100 for him."

"He's mine," said the other. "I think more of that dog than I do of my children."

"One of you is mistaken," said the Judge. "I cannot decide this matter. I will settle it by letting a policeman take the dog out and shoot him."

"All right," said one of the claimants, waving his fist in the face of the other man. "Just so you don't get him."

"No, don't kill the dog," shouted the other man. "He's too nice to be ruthlessly shot. Let the other man have him, only I hope, your Honor, that you will make a stipulation that he treats him right."

"The dog is yours," said the Judge to the second man. "Take him home with you."

Senator Stewart Never Shaved

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, who is the proud possessor of the most luxuriant growth of whiskers in the Senate, has never been shaved in his life. His beard began to sprout when he was about 16 and he is now 75. "Oh, yes," said he the other day, "I have often thought of shaving. Kind hearted friends have given me razors and advised me to go to work on my beard, but I never took their advice. You see, when I was a young man I never owned a razor and I had to let my whiskers grow wild. Now it is too late. My constituents would rage, and my political career would be wrecked."

Illustrating His Subjects

"No, you can't see Mr Blankblank this morning during office hours."

"But he's a public official, isn't he?"

"Yes, he's engaged in the public service."

"May I ask what's he's doing?"

"He's writing a magazine article on 'How Can We Improve the Officeholder's Neglectful Treatment of the Public?'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE OUTLOOK

Notable among the articles in the June Magazine Number of The Outlook which is also its Annual Recreation Number, and contains much especially pertaining to out-of-door life, is the account by Dr. James M. Whinton, of "The first Harvard-Yale Regatta (1852)." Dr. Whiton, who was then a Junior at Yale, arranged the race between the two colleges, rowing himself in the Yale crew, and his recollections of the event preserved, are of exceeding interest, not only to the college world, but to all who believe in such contests. Among other articles most timely for the season are, "A Reverie of Gardens," by Prof. L. H. Bailey, illustrated by most charming photographs taken by Mr J. Horace McFarland of corners in gardens and clustering plants. In an article on Country Clubs, Mr. Gustav Kobbe describes many typical country clubs, East and West, with pictures of the club houses. Photographs taken by Mr Clifton Johnson at Tuskegee illustrate a talk by Mr Booker T. Washington, on "Chickens, Pigs and People," full of his usual homely common sense and wise observations. Mr. Philip W. Ayres contributes an article of extreme value on "The Forester and His Work," illustrated by forest scenes in Colorado, Minnesota, Virginia and other States. The Autobiography of Mr Jacob A. Riis, "The Making of an American," is continued in a novel fashion, as Mr Riis contributes a chapter entitled, "Elizabeth Tells Her Story." The usual history of events and reviews of newly published books are to be found in the Number, besides its special Recreation features. HE REDUCED THE BAIL

It is not necessary to say just how long ago this happened, for it might suggest a name. A man who has since gained fame and wealth at the Michigan bar was then judge by appointment in one of the territories. He had not then settled down to the steady gait he has since acquired and was not troubled when the balance showed up on the wrong side of his cash account.

On one occasion a notorious offender was brought before him and the time for trial fixed for a few weeks ahead. Bail was demanded, but the authorities knew that the prisoner had committed much graver crimes elsewhere and did not want him to have a chance to escape. The bail was fixed at $1,000, which was high, considering the nature of the case, and the lawyer for the accused made a vigorous protest that seemed to do no good. The bondsman who offered was a widely known gambler of the frontier, and when they thought to disqualify him by swearing him to what he owed he quickly frustrated their scheme.

"I'll put up the coin," he interrupted, "and I'll put it right in the judge's own hands," a proceeding that no one interfered with. There were $700 in notes and a piece of paper on which something was written. The judge glanced at it and then said in his most judicial tone: "I don't know but the bail asked is a little oppressive. I will reduce it to $500." He handed some bills back to the gambler, who had meanwhile been tearing the paper to bits in an absentminded way. It was the judge's personal note for $ 00. The accused never showed up for trial, and the judge told the story long afterward.—Detroit Free Press.

THE SHIPMASTER'S COW

A certain farmer is telling mean things about a Rockland shipmaster. "The shipmaster," he says, "bought a cow of a man down my way, good critter, nothin the matter with her. But it seems the captain's wife one day thought the milk tasted funny and segested that p'raps she'd been eating spruce boughs—said tasted like spruce. And what does he do but go out in the pastur to watch the cow, to see what she did eat. The cow was layin down, chewin her cud, and he went along and run his finger in her mouth to see what she was eatin. Then he was mad. He put a rope on the cow and started off with her. He met a neighbor, who says, 'Where are you goin with the cow?' 'Goin to take her back to the feller that sold her to me. He's cheated me, and I won't stand it.'

"The man wanted to know what was the matter, and he went on to tell about it and says: 'She wa'n't eatin boughs, but she was chewing that's what's the matter with the milk and makes it taste like spruce. And he says that ain't all. She's so addicted to the habit that she's worn all her teeth out. She ain't got an upper tooth in her head. Lick she gone, quick.'

"Of course the man told him that it was all nonsense—that cows never had no upper teeth. But he didn't believe a word of it and went on and had a turnal row with the man that sold him the cow. Guess he was never satisfied about it or knew what a darned fool he was in skin of himself."—[illegible]

She Waited

Even a Scotchman cannot always be humorous, it he would. Like other people, however, he is sometimes funny without meaning to be. The Scottish American thinks that the message sent by a young man in Peeblesshire to his waiting bride may have kept her from worrying over his nonappearance, but that she must after all have received it with mixed feelings.

The bride elect lived in a village some distance from the home of William, the bridegroom. The wedding was to be at her home. On the eventful day the young man started for the station, but on the way met the village grocer, who talked so entertainingly that Will missed his train.

Naturally he was in what is known as a "state of mind." Something must be done and done at once. So he sent the following telegram:

Don't marry till I come.

WILLIAM.

If the bride elect knew her William she probably knew how he felt when he sent the message and forgave the mental confusion which resulted in what she must have looked upon as a needless request.

An Itinerant Infant

Going down the road in North Carolina I accosted a bright looking little colored girl and inquired her name.

"Virginia Alabama Mississippi Lerson," she said so hurriedly that I had to ask her to repeat it several times, and I failed to discover how so foreign to infant an atom in this great universe had received such a tremendous title.

Learning that she lived in a little cabin near by, I inquired of her mother.

"So's to 'member the places we've lived at," was the reply, and further questioning drew out the interesting fact that the child had been made a family record and christened so that her parents might not forget the names of the states in which they had resided.—Chicago Record Herald.

For the Public Good

"If you don't take it," said the struggling young author with a gleam of fierce determination in his eye, "I'll find somebody who will."

The editor looked the poem over again.

"Well," he said, "how will $5 do for it?"

"I'll take it," replied the struggling young author, suppressing his eagerness. "When will I see it in print?"

"You won't see it at all, young man," rejoined the editor, handing over the money. "I'm buying this merely to suppress it in the interests of the helpless public."—Chicago Tribune.
